Chronicle Books opens its first branded micro-store in Japan

San Francisco, CA (March 17, 2016) San Francisco-based publisher Chronicle Books LLC announced today that it has opened a Chronicle Books micro-store in Tokyo, Japan.

Modeled after Chronicle Books’ bookstores in San Francisco, the micro-store called Chronicle Books Daikanyama is situated in the fashionable Daikanyama district of Tokyo in the Shibuya ward, a tree-line neighborhood known for its cafes and independent boutiques.

As part of the Chronicle Books Japan Co. Ltd partnership with Top Partners Co., Ltd, (a subsidiary of Culture Convenience Club which owns and operates the highly renowned Japanese Book Store Chain Tsutoya) established last year, the store will feature Chronicle Books’ books and their distribution partners including English language books, stationery and gifts as well as Japanese books, stationery and gift titles. The store also features a children’s corner, a gift wrapping service, and will host workshops and events related to Chronicle Books’ publishing.

“The opening of our first branded boutique represents an exciting opportunity for Chronicle Books,” says Jack Jensen, President of Chronicle Books who attended the store’s opening ceremony this week. “It’s a chance for us to establish a direct relationship with Japanese customers and build loyalty for our brand in this important market. Working with CCC allows us to learn more about how a great Japanese book retailer reaches the ever growing book consumer in Japan.”

Chronicle Books Japan also has branded boutiques in several Tsutaya bookstores throughout Japan.
